EIGHTY-FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COLUMBIA INSTITUTION FOR THE DEAF

COLUMBIA INSTITUTION FOR THE DEAF,

KENDALL GREEN,

Washington, D. C., August 31, 1938.

Sir: During the fiscal year July 1, 1937, through June 30, 1938, there were under instruction in the advanced department of the institution, known as Gallaudet College, 82 men and 52 women, a total of 134, representing 39 states and the District of Columbia. This is a decrease of 7 as compared with the preceding year.

In the primary and grammar department, known as the Kendall School, there were under instruction 32 boys and 41 girls, a total of 73. This is a decrease of 1 as compared with the preceding year. Of the total in this department, 70 were admitted as beneficiaries of the District of Columbia.

There were admitted to the institution 28 males and 23 females; discharged, 17 males and 15 females.

HEALTH

The health record of pupils and students for the year was an excellent one. A fracture of the small bone in the leg from a fall and an abscess of the hip were the only two surgical cases of any consequence among the whole student body. There were no cases of serious contagious disease throughout the whole school year. Regular exercise (including supervised sports), abundant supply of pure milk, regular hours, and careful medical examinations and inoculations against diphtheria, typhoid, and scarlet fever no doubt account for this good record.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

As predicted in the last annual report, instruction was resumed in architectural drawing and a special course was given in statistics and their graphical representation. A course in principles of teaching, begun a year ago, was continued with success.

NEEDS OF THE INSITUTION

The most pressing need of the institution from a material standpoint is the memorial building, planned in memory of Dr. Edward Miner Gallaudet, which will house the library, printing office, new laboratories, recitation rooms, and an exhibition room. A study by skilled engineers shows that we have sufficient boiler capacity in our power house to take care of such a building, and a new connection with the Potomac Electric Power Company's city lines (with abandonment of production of current by our own machinery) has given us a sufficient supply of electric current to take care of the lighting of new buildings. An addition has been made to the sorting room at our laundry, electric irons installed, and improved fixtures with better lighting facilities have been devised for the library and men's reading room. There is, however, need for more funds for improved laundry machinery and for the continuation of the revision of the lighting, by the removal of old and dangerous wires and replacement with new material. An addition to the old laboratory building, a new basketball floor for the present gymnasium, and new units for the Kendall School dormitories and school rooms, with two new cottages for instructors, should all be provided for in the not too distant future. No buildings have been provided for our institution during the past twenty years.

The only funds on hand at the present time for construction are approximately $60,000 in gifts from the students and friends of the institution toward the memorial building mentioned above. In the fall of 1938, all dormitory space for the advanced department will be filled, and the dormitory for the girls in the Kendall School is already badly crowded. This makes the need for carrying out our building program all the more pressing.

RESEARCH WORK

As mentioned in our last report, an important research problem has been going on under Prof. Sam B. Craig, of our faculty, financed by a small gift from the National Research Council. This is a study of the medium or media of communication most easily understood by deaf students. It is being very carefully carried out through motion pictures and regular tests of the intelligibility of manual spelling, speech, and a combination of spelling and speech. This study should be completed during the next fiscal year.

There are many other important problems to be studied in the education of the deaf, and the schools of the country look to our institution for leadership in this field. During the year, provision has been made for a research worker for 1938-39. Several problems will be considered, including a study of the language of hearing children compared with that of deaf children, a survey of the hearing and eyesight of the students and pupils of this institution, and a survey of employment conditions of the deaf in the District of Columbia. This type of work should be continued and expanded in our institution because of the great need for it and because our institution furnishes the best location in this country for study and the best cross-section of deaf students to be found in any part of the world.

SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

On April 8, 1864, President Abraham Lincoln signed the bill allowing the Columbia Institution for the Deaf to give collegiate degrees. A special gathering was held in that year to celebrate the inauguration of the collegiate department, and teaching was started in the fall with a small number of young deaf men. Since that time, approximately two thousand students have entered the college, including young women, who were first admitted in 1887. A Normal Department was established in 1891, which has graduated over two hundred hearing persons. A large percentage of these have become prominent in the education of the deaf throughout the country. Several hundred of the graduates of the college are engaged in teaching the deaf, and from a survey made a little over a year ago, it is evident that over 90% of the former students of the college are self-supporting. They are engaged not only in teaching but also in many professions and many types of business.

It is the intention of the Board of Directors to have special Commencement exercises next June to have a meeting of the alumni in the same month, and in October to sponsor a meeting of the Conference of Executives of American Schools for the Deaf.

SPECIAL GIFTS

A gift of $5,000 was received during the year from the estate of Mr. Thomas S. Marr, well known deaf architect, for the establishment of a scholarship bearing his name.

Further gifts were received from Mrs. Olof Hanson for a prize to be given in memory of her husband.

The Gallaudet Memorial Building Fund has continued to accumulate interest earned until it has amounted to over $60,000.
